Venice, Febr. 10. We have Letters from Turkey, which give us an account, that the Grand Viſier was come to Adrianople, and had made his entry into that City in a triumphal manner, as if he returned from great Victories; that the preparations for War were very great throughout the Ottoman Territories, and that according to all appearance the War between them and the Moſcovites would be continued with great heat on both ſides, and to the ſhedding of much blood. The Senate have reſolved not to ſend an Ambaſſador to Rome, till they ſhall be thereto deſired by the Pope, and then the Chevalier Grimani, a perſon of great experience, will it's thought be pitched upon for that Employment.

Vienna. Febr. 9. The hopes we had of ſeeing a ſpeedy end put to the troubles of Hungary, by a Peace, leſſen every day more and more; for as on one ſide the Hungarians think not the two great Points concerning their Religion and Liberties ſufficiently provided for by the Conditions the Emperor was pleaſed to declare he was willing to grant them, when their Deputies were here, ſo it's to be believed that the account we have from Nimeguen, that the Peace would certainly be ſigned in few days, will not encline the Miniſters here to any new condeſcenſions towards thoſe people, ſeeing the Emperor will now have his Forces, which have been employed in Germany, at liberty to act, if he ſhall
